Glossary

Madison

A relay race where each team is made up of two people who aim to complete more laps than other competitors. Riders in each team take turns cycling laps before resting and tapping in another teammate through a slingshot motion. Points are awarded at various points following a sprint and at the end of the event the team with the most points is declared the winner.

Keirin

A sprint race where competitors must first follow a pacer on an electric bike (Derny) in order to build speed for three laps of the track. Once the pacer leaves the track all riders can then use a combination of strategy, positioning and strength to be the first across the finish line after another three laps.

Omnium

The newest event in track cycling is a points based competition that comprises of four races (Scratch, Tempo, Elimination and Points). Competitors earn points throughout the four races and after they have completed all of the races the points are accumulated and the team with the highest score wins.

Sprint

Sprint teams consist of 3 riders per team in the men's competition and in the women's competition teams are comprised of 2 riders.

The lead rider is a specialist at standing starts and able to smoothly but powerfully bring the team up to speed as fast as possible before pulling off at the end of one lap and letting the next rider take the lead.

The second rider for the men's team sprint will further accelerate for one more lap, launching the final rider for his all-out sprint of the final lap. The fastest team wins.

Pursuit

Each team is composed of four riders who race together across 16 laps, each taking turns pulling with the others drafting in a straight line.

Each round is contested by two teams starting on opposite sides of the track to cover the 4,000. The time is taken as the third rider's front wheel crosses the finish line.

The lead rider powers the team into a turn then pulls off high on the banking and dives down to rejoin in the draft of the last rider. The better a rider is at pulling off an effective exchange, the more efficient they are at saving energy and thus the faster they can travel.

Repechages

A Practice which sees riders who did not qualify directly from the heats gain a second opportunity to race for a place in the next round of competition.
